

OFFICERS PUT CRIMP IN GANG OF RUSTLERS

After engineering the capture of three desperadoes who have maintained a reign of terror for months in New Mexico, and eastern Arizona, John Collier, lieutenant of the New Mexico mounted police, is looking lean and brown as the result of the strenuous chase of between 150 and 200 miles necessary to capture the outlaws. The latter were Manuel Marans, leader of a band of rustlers known as the "Marans gang," Dionisio Sanchez and Juan Gutierrez. The hunt was headed by Collier, Deputy Sheriff Jim Pearce, of Apache county, Arizona, and others, and the posse included expert Navajo and Zuni trailers.

After a hearing at Gallup, Collier is said to have hypnotized the prisoners into signing an agreement that they would waive extradition, whisked them in an automobile over the line, and delivered them to the authorities at Holbrook, where the men are now in jail.

"It was one of the hardest man-hunts I ever had anything to do with," said Collier.

Ramoh, N. M., July 21.—There is much jubilation here over the news that three members of the notorious Marans gang have been captured after five days of the most strenuous trailing over rugged mountain country in New Mexico and Arizona. This Marans gang has been terrorizing this district for some three years past, and the last straw came on Tuesday when an aged Mexican, Maximiliano Jaramillo, was held up by Manuel Marans and two other outlaws at his ranch near Atarque and robbed of all his clothing, his food and practically everything else he possessed, including a good set of harness. It has been hard to get the authorities to take a hand in running this gang down, but after the robbery of Jaramillo, the people of the district decided it was about time to take things into their own hands and began organizing for a systematic hunt. Navajos had been coming in for several days reporting the theft of horses from the range between Ramoh and Salt Lake. A party was at once formed, consisting of six Navajos, a native, W. Clawson, and Mr. Hutton, the stock official of the Zuni Indians, which tribe has suffered considerably at the hands of the rustlers. Mr. Hutton being also a deputy sheriff of McKinley county. The trail led first to St. Johns and Mr. Hutton dropped out here to telephone ahead and notify Deputy Sheriff Jim Pearce at Springerville. Mr. Pearce went out and met the trailers, the party being further strengthened by the addition of Lieut. Collier, of the New Mexico mounted police who came out from Santa Fe in response to a telegram sent from Ramoh. From Springerville, the posse trailed the rustlers over the roughest kind of Malpais country to Natchez, and to the Escalante mountains, both south, then west to the head of Blue river, thence back into New Mexico. The fearless man-hunters came here by day and followed the trail by the use of matches at night.

The Navajo trailers were apparently never at a loss for a minute even where the trail led over ground where it was almost impossible for the white men to follow it, and trailed along with eyes on the ground like a hawk with his nose to the trail. The rustlers describe the work of the Indians as wonderful and say a Navajo has the famous long-stay of Arizonians but a mile, when it comes to following a scent. The rustlers, desperate at the relentless pursuit, traveled over smooth rocks as much as possible in the futile efforts to throw their pursuers off the trail. On the fourth day of the chase the posse came upon a native with some of the stolen horses, which he claimed to have purchased from the rustlers. Threatened with summary hanging to the nearest tree, this man finally agreed to take the rustlers to the headquarters of the rustlers at Laguna del Chino, a small, some settlement forty miles of Salt Lake in New Mexico. They reached this town late in the afternoon this day and after cautiously reconnoitering reached the first house outside of which one of the stolen teams stood harnessed up. Drawing in the door Mr. Collier and Mr. Pearce, and their men surprised and captured Sanchez, but Marans jumped out of a small window at the rear, darted into the arroyos of the rough mesa back of the settlement. The posse was at once divided, one half to hunt for Marans, while the others made for a house down the valley where the third horse thief was reported to be. This man Gutierrez, they met running up with a gun ready to join in the fight but Pearce was too quick for him, and he surrendered in the face of the officers cocked and aimed six shooter. The Indians soon had Marans located and surrounded on the mesa, but it was not until morning that he gave himself up. He would have made his escape had he been armed, but made his getaway so quick he didn't have time to take a gun along.

Marans, leader of the gang, confessed that he had stolen fully 300 horses besides many cattle from the ranges during the past three years, and said he had driven off stock so often with impunity that he had come to the conclusion that the authorities were afraid of him. Ranchmen in the country were certainly badly "buffaloed" or else friendly to the thieves, for the possemen found it very hard to get any information.

The Marans gang was preparing to start off next day to round up another bunch of stock. They claimed that another member, Jose Diaz, was in the Zuni mountains stealing horses from men working in the camps of the American Lumber Company.

CATTLE INSPECTOR KILLS A NOTED RUSTLER

Captain Fred Farnoff, of the state mounted police, was in Albuquerque Saturday, recovered with life Friday night from a bullet wound in the chest, of the killing of Bob Ross, alleged rustler, by Tom Tucker, a state cattle inspector, in a fight between a posse and Ross and a pal named Whitcomb on a ranch near Ocala, Lincoln county, on Thursday. The posse was led by Deputy Sheriff Al Roberts of Lincoln county. Ross was shot through the head and instantly killed, as reported. Whitcomb gave himself up. The posse trailed the rustlers for a long distance, surrounded them in the ranch house, and when they refused to come into the shed fire. These two rustlers, it is claimed, have been a great deal of trouble to the cattle inspectors and have committed serious and costly depredations for several years in Lincoln county.

Ross several months ago discovered a deputy when the latter tried to arrest him, and made his escape.

WEEKLY PAPERS TAKE NOTICE

On account of the risk of the publication since the 3-year law became a reality, the News office will furnish final proof notices set in type, the proof read and guaranteed absolutely correct according to the copy furnished by the land office. The proof will be read by a man who has had years of experience. If a mistake should occur we will reset the proof free of charge. Our price for setting same will be 25¢ for each proof. This expense as transportation charges must be paid by the publisher, and the metal returned to the News office as soon as possible after the completion of the publication. THE NEWS, Tucumcari, N. M.

SIX BOYS CAUGHT SIX GALLONS OF FLIES IN SIX DAYS

A "Swat the Fly" campaign is being conducted at Albuquerque by the Women's Club. Saturday morning the club for the week was successful in the club building by a committee appointed for that purpose. Their six boys were on the job, but they had a total of six gallons of flies. The boys were given credit slips for the flies caught and urged to work industriously in the next two weeks. The contest will close then and fifty dollars in prizes will be distributed.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS

Hereafter all advertising copy must be received in the office not later than 5 p. m. on Thursday to be printed same week. We cannot hold the forms back as some merchants advertise Saturday sales, and the paper must be in the mail Friday. It will be better for all concerned, and we will not deviate from this rule for anyone. Do not ask it. We want your business, but want it in time to print on time.

PAPER BAG COOKING

DINNER FOR WEEK-END GUEST.

By Martha McCulloch Williams. To show you still further what is possible with paper bag cooking, I am giving the menu of the latest paper bag cooked dinner that I served to guests. And since all the guests were women, I know that there was need for me to excel myself. This would make a good menu to serve to the week-end guest.

Menu.
Cantaloupe a la Viergo
Roast Quail Baked Ham
Celery Sautéed Nuts
Asparagus with Cheese Mushrooms
Spiced Apples Sweet Plum Pickle
Banana Short Cake, Pome Sauce
Claret Punch Assorted Fruit
Black Coffee

The quail were stuffed each with a fat raisin, a pinch of seasoned bread crumbs and a bit of butter, then wrapped in the thinnest possible slices of streaky bacon, tied so it could not slip, and the birds put in a well buttered bag and cooked for twenty-five minutes in an oven at first hot, but moderate throughout the last half of the cooking.

The ham I did not take in a bag. The whole joint of country had been barbecued. Asparagus came out of cans, since fresh asparagus is not in season. After the quail were cooked, the asparagus was put in a buttered bag, with a dusting of salt and pepper, and a little water, and cooked for ten minutes in an oven at first hot, but moderate throughout the last half of the cooking.

The mushrooms were ripe, fat and fresh. It was my intention to nip off the stems, wash them delicately with a damp cloth, and cook in a buttered bag with a dusting of salt and pepper, and a little water, and cook for ten minutes in an oven at first hot, but moderate throughout the last half of the cooking.

For the main course I first sliced small round steaks, very thin, and seasoned with salt and pepper to them, a little onion and a little table-spoon of butter. They stood on ice while I prepared the rest. It required but a minute to prepare the steaks, but the steaks were cooked for ten minutes in an oven at first hot, but moderate throughout the last half of the cooking.

The main course was cooked for ten minutes in an oven at first hot, but moderate throughout the last half of the cooking. The main course was cooked for ten minutes in an oven at first hot, but moderate throughout the last half of the cooking.

Bad Spells

"I suffered, during girlhood, from womanly weakness," writes Mrs. Mollie Navy, of Walnut, N. C. "At last, I was almost bed-ridden, and had to give up. We had three doctors. All the time, I was getting worse. I had bad spells, that lasted from 7 to 28 days. In one week, after I gave Cardui a trial, I could eat, sleep, and joke, as well as anybody. In 8 weeks, I was well. I had been an invalid for 5 weary years! Cardui relieved me, when everything else failed."

TAKE CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

If you are weak and ailing, think what it would mean, to you, to recover as quickly as Mrs. Navy did. For more than 50 years, this purely vegetable, tonic remedy, for women, has been used by thousands of weak and ailing sufferers. They found it of real value in relieving their aches and pains. Why suffer longer? A remedy that has relieved and helped so many, is ready, at the nearest drug store, for use, at once, by you. Try it, today.
